The Irish Leader Present in Court While Beach Relates His Alleged Agitation Experiences.

MEETINGS IN AMERICA.

Beach Professes to Know All the Se crets of the Irish Organization would leak out and compromise the Parnellite party.

Witness said John O'Conner, an agent employed for carrying arms to Ireland, attended the convention as the representative of the supreme council of the Irish Republican Brotherhood. The court overruled a objection in behalf of Parnell that this evidence was irrelevant. Witness said he saw Lomasney two days before Lomasney left America for the purpose of carrying out the plan of the campaign by explosions. Lomasney never returned and the organization had ever since supported his family and father. Witness believed Lomasney and his brother, Michael, perished in the London bridge explosion. Witness continued his testimoney, telling of his attendance at the Chicago convention in January, 1882. He told of its organization, workings, etc. During the testimony Parnell appeared in the court room. His entrance created a sensation. Witness looked steadily at Parnell several momenta. Continuing witness said he sent copies of all the documents of the brotherhood to the English government at the time.

The witness said Alexander Sullivan, of said Sullivan told him in future men would be chosen for work who did not exceed orders, like Gallagher, who gave himself away, enabling Jim McDermott to get information. Sullivan said they would continue to send men to England to carry on an active dynamite war. Witness further said that in a circular issued in 1883, every branch of the organization was commanded to endeavor to perfect itself in some particular branch of warfare.

An open convention of the league met in Philadelphia April 26, 1883. Witness attended as a Clan-Na-Gael delegate of the the convention. A ter the convention the land league became the national league, of which Sullivan was president. Thomas Brennan attended the secret meetings, which it would have been impossible for him to have attended unless he he had been a member of "E. R. B." or "M. B."

Attorney-General Webster read some accounts, including items of $27,102 sent Egan at Paris and $12,903 sent Parnell. He also quoted from a cable dispatch sent by Parnell to Mooney, April 26, 1883 In this dispatch Parnell asks Mooney to present his (Parnell's) views to the convention and advise the delegates to frame a platform that will enable the nationalists to continue to accept American assistance, while avoiding offering England a pretext for the entire suppression of the nationalist movement, which, he says, is the only means for preserving the unity of the Irish movement in Ireland and America. He expressed himself as perfectly confident the Irish cause will continue to advance by the exercise of prudence, moderation and firmness. Witness resuming his testimony said the circular issued Sept. 6, 1883, said the executive was unable to see its way to an armed insurrection until England should become involved in a war. In the meantime a secret war would be carried on. All informers, the circular said, were foredoomed. While in Milwaukee Sullivan said to him that active operations were entirely in the bands of the revolutionary directory, their own should be without family and be an old and tried member before departing on an expedition. Every man would be instructed in the use and management of explosives. At the end of 1883 there was a spit in the organization, the seceders retaining the old name while the others, under Sullivan's leadership, founded a new organization entitled the "United States." The executive committee was reduced to three members, there being a triangle. Witness and a majority of the members of the camp joined the "United States."

cx-president of the irish National League of America, speaking to-day in regard to state ents made about him by Dr. Lecaron before the Parnell commission in London yesterday, said he knew Lecaron very slightly. The latter had represented himself to Sullivan as a Frenchman with most ardent Irish sympathies. He claimed to have served in the Union army and afterwards in the Fenian organization. Mr. Sullivan believed there was not a particle of foundation for Lecaron's statements about Parnell's expressions of sympathy with any method except open, public agitation to aid Ireland. The whole story was another desperate effort to give some col-r or excuse for continuing the case against Parnell.

The Evening News declares Lecaron served in the Union army during the waand intimates that both then and during his connection with the Fenians he acted as a spy for the British government. He had an office in this city on Lasalle avenue, but left for Europe about Christmas.

and Reports a Number of Conversations.

London, Feb. 6.—Parnell was present at the session of the commission to-day. He held a lively conversation with Michael Davitt. Beach, who is also known as Dr. Lecaron, continued his evidence. He detailed a conversation which he had with Alexander Sullivan in June, 1881, regarding the proposed alliance of the different Irish organizations in which Sullivan sad no radical change could be effected until they had a change of representatives on this side of the water, which would be very soon. Sullivan, referring to a visit to Ireliand, which he contemplated making, said he could not think of allowing Parnell to pay his expenses as doing so would place Parnell in a false position. Sullivan bitterly opposed the discussion of this matter in open convention on the ground that it would leak out and compromise the Parnellius party.

Their rescue was accomplished with great difficulty. Twenty-four hours before they were rescued they sighted a life boat putting out from shore towards them, but it returned without coming near. Capt. Daly, of the life saving station, claims he Daly has since resigned, however. A co-incidence in connection with this story is the fact that it was discovered to-day that at the very time when Capt. #### TOO MUCH SAGACITY.

A Notorious Character Wanted, But He is Too Shrewd For the Talent Set to Trace Him to His Hiding Place.

For several days past there has been one of Furiong's men in the city in search of a man named John Ramsey, who is wanted in St. Louis, Missouri, for several crimes. but principally for the robbery of his father-in-law from whom he stole $2,7000 about two months ago. It was only after the detective. Tom McNeil, was convinced that Ramsey was not in Montana that he agreed to speak about the man whom Me Neil terms one of the toughest mugs in the United States. "I arrested the man in New Orleans ten ears ago for sharing in the proceeds of a bbery committed by French Tony and Black Jack Hubbard, who is now doing time in Jefferson City, Mo., for passing counterfeit money. Tony and his pal robbed an old Frenchman of $5,000, having been put on by Ramsey, and he was given his divy out of the proceeds, and that I recovered. His pals got away. Ramsey's friends got him out of the scrape and he has not been under arrest since, but he should have been a thousand times. He is what I call the meanest kind of a thief, as he pursues a respectable calling, and under that guise is able to baffle the shrewdest detectives. He is a railroad engineer and is seldom out of work, and as he knows every crook in the country is able to give pointers that benefit them as well as himself. I suppose if I were to find the man and take him back the little affair for which he is wanted would be compromised. But I will tell you the story. Ramsey was running a freight on the Wabash between St. Louis and Moberly with headquarters at Moberly. He lived there for three years and during that time we were sure he stood in with several robberies on the line of the road but could not collect evidence against him.
